Have you ever thought of collecting something and before you know it you have a huge collection of memorabilia? Anura Saparamadu has done just that, ever since he fell in love with a poster of the Kandy dancer which was created in the days gone by. He began to collect posters connected to Ceylon which were created before 1979.

Today Anura's collection comprises of over 250 posters ranging from cinema to travel.

After six long years of collecting posters Anura has decided to showcase his collection at the barefoot gallery commencing from the 9th till the 24th of November.

The posters have all been hand painted and they truly do transport you back to days gone by.
